Dear Ahmad,

I sent an email to you two days ago regarding the next steps in the publication process for my manuscript. In case you haven't received it, I have attached the file again. Additionally, I have revised the manuscript based on the suggestions from the proofreader.

Could you please proceed with processing my manuscript for the next stage of publication? I eagerly await your response.

Best regards,

Dear Romi,

We have adopted all your revisions and made some further edits to ensure compliance with the journal style. We have also highlighted footnotes where translations for non-English references are required according to the journal style. Please add the translations and send the final version back to Dr Ahmad. He will advise you further.

Best Regards,
Ahmad

Dear Gul,

I sent the revised manuscript via email a few days ago. Could you please confirm if you have received it? If not, I have attached the files again for your convenience.

Once confirmed, could you also advise on the next steps for the publication process?

Looking forward to your response.

Best regards,

Dear Author,

The edited version of your article is attached. We have used track changes to make all the corrections and added comments where further action is revision is required from you.

Regarding the subject matter, the paper consists of large chunks of data with very little analysis. Arguments are not fully developed, and you have moved on to next sections before properly elaborating key points. For instance, the concept of falah is explained early on but is barely mentioned or relied upon later in the paper. I acknowledge the need to be succinct, but it should not come at the cost of analysis which is the backbone of research. I would also suggest that you consider changing their paper's structure, if feasible, as the current structure leaves much to be desired; for example, the part titled "Enhancing Zakat Management: Strategies for Success" seems to provide recommendations, therefore seems out of place at its current placement. Therefore, I recommend that the paper be comprehensively overhauled before further review is conducted by external reviewers.

Please make all the required changes and send the article back to me. I will take another look before we initiate the external review process. Please note that it is very important that the revisions are made properly. Otherwise, the external reviewer may reject the paper.

Best wishes,
Gul

Dear Romi,

We are happy to accept the article for publication in its current form now. Please see attached PDF proofs for final checking before publication. Go through the entire article, checking very carefully if there are any errors or typos that need to be corrected. Especially,

1. Check the author name and affiliation and email in the first asterisked footnote.
2. Check the headings and subheadings very carefully and see if their respective numbering is correct.
3. Check if the footnotes are in order and consistent throughout.

If you want anything to be corrected, indicate this on the PDF file by adding a text box in the relevant point. Note that we can make only minor edits at this point in time.

Also, can you please fill in and sign the attached copyright assignment.

Best Regards,
Ahmad

Dear Ahmad,

I have reviewed the proofing, and it is now ready for publication. However, one author has declined to sign the affirmation but has agreed to be mentioned in the acknowledgements instead. I have noted this in the comments as well. Please find attached the proofing file, along with the copyright and license assignment document.

Thank you.

Dear Romi,

The Vol 20 Iss 3 20024 of MJTILP is now published. Please see attached complete Issue and a separate copy of your published article. The online copy of the issue and your article is available here: MJTILP ISSN 2633-6626 Vol 20 Issue 3 2024 | ElectronicPublications

Please note that you have full permission to disseminate and publicise the full papers and the complete issue on your networks, websites, official profiles, and social medial outlets etc.

Once again, congratulations on the publication of your excellent article. I am highly grateful for the time and effort you have spent on going through several rounds of revisions during our rigorous peer-review process.

One way of marketing and further dissemination of your article is to record a small video introducing the main argument and findings of your article. We can post this video on our very active LinkedIn page. The journal's ranking is enhanced if its articles are cited in research published in other journals. Please ensure that the relevant community of scholars engaged in your filed of research have access to your copy of the article and the complete issue.

Please also continue with the momentum and suggest possible ways to further engage with your networks and legal community in your country to promote our journal.

Best Regards,
Ahmad
